

SOLONS AWAIT
DAVEY PROGRAM
OF LEGISLATION

Will Be Introduced In Assembly Next Week,
Governor Says

DRAFTING GROUP
IS HARD AT WORK

Authority to Reorganize
State Government
Is Asked

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 15.—Governor Davey's sweeping program of legislation will be introduced in the general assembly next week, the governor said today.

"The drafting committee is working diligently on the bills now and will have them ready before the closing date, the 20th," the governor told the Associated Press. The drafting committee is headed by Howard L. Bevis, director of finance.

Some of the bills will be only in preliminary form but we plan to have all of them in the legislature next week," he added.

Discounts Recess Rumor

The governor made the statement in discounting a report that administration leaders plan to seek a recess of the legislature about May 1 to be reconvened next fall
for the consideration of the bulk of the governor's program.

The bills to be introduced, Mr.
Davey said, will include his proposal to give him widespread authority to reorganize the state government. Others will be proposals to amend the state liquor law, for reforms in banking and building and loan legislation, and for a permanent program of taxation.

The governor declined to disclose the nature of the legislation he plans to sponsor. Democratic leaders of the house and senate profess to have received no indication as to the nature of Mr. Davey's legislative proposals.

Seeks Liquor Amendment

The governor has said, however,
that he will urge an amendment to the liquor law to eliminate either the gross profit or the $1 a gallon liquor tax. He plans also to propose an Ohio financing organization, patterned after the reconstruction finance corporation, which would be authorized to make loans to closed building and loan associations and banks to expedite their reorganization and payment to depositors.

The Ohio RFC would issue bonds to obtain funds with which to make large loans to closed financial institutions. The governor believes that an Ohio RFC would be able to make more liberal allowances on assets of closed institutions than the federal RFC is wont to make.

Grange Presents

Butler grange members met at the hall last night and conducted the following program: Song, "Tenting on the Old Camp

tion, "Would it be possible for the farmer to work on a 40-hour week schedule?"; biography of George Washington, Miss Bertha Drotter;
poem, "Valentine's Day," by Mrs.
Ethel Mountz; general discussion
by the grange on the subject, "How is the new sales tax revenue to be used?"

Following the program a game of matching hearts to form the words, "Valentine Greetings," was conducted by the lecturer.

The grange will convene at the hall Feb. 28 for the next regular session.

Society Girl To Testify
For Youth She Rejected

Virginia Wilcox

Defense counsel for Philip Kenamer, Tulsa, Okla., judge's son, named Miss Virginia Wilcox, pretty Tulsa debutante, above, as the girl with whom the accused youth was madly in love. A. Flint Moss, defense attorney, intends to prove at Kenamer's trial at Pawnee, Okla., that the youth accused of fatally wounding his companion, John Gorrell, last Thanksgiving day, "went insane" when he heard that Gorrell planned an extortion plot against Homer Wilcox, the girl's father.

AAA WORRYING
AS PRICES RISE

Fears Food Cost Increase
May turn Wives Against Administration

WASHINGTON, Feb. 15.—Fear that rising prices may turn the American housewife against the agriculture adjustment administration and its crop reduction programs was expressed today by some AAA officials.

With new crops four months away, they said retail prices are just beginning to feel the full effect of last year's drought and curtailed
farm acreage.

Bureau of labor statistics showed increases in the cost of food ranging from 44 per cent for butter to less than one per cent for wheat cereals. Only potatoes, onions, cabbage and bananas showed decreases.

Average retail figures for the country compared with a year ago showed these increases: Milk 4.5 per cent; cheese 10; beef 17.5; pork chops, 34.2; lamb 70.5; mutton 18.3;
poultry 16.3; eggs 23.4; white bread 5.1; flour 8.5; canned corn 16.4;
canned peas 22.5; peaches 10.9.

AAA officials said they believed the public will stand no further increases without vigorous protests.

Girl's Stomach Is
Upside Down; Rare
Operation Looms

(By Associated Press)

OMAHA, Feb. 15.—Ten-year-old Alyce Jane McHenry, whose stomach is upside-down, today toyed with her dolls, unmindful of the fact that physicians believe her life depends on an operation few surgeons will attempt.

Alyce Jane's mother, a clerk, has been told that Phil Philemon E.
Tuesdale of Fall River, Mass., is one of the few specialists in diaphragmatic hernia. In and when the mother raises the money, she will take the child east. Meanwhile, little Alyce Jane must lie in bed, her life hanging by a delicate thread that may snap with variance from her rigid diet, which consists largely of ice cream.

Omaha doctors explained the upside-down stomach conditions as caused by a break in the diaphragm which allows abdominal organs to be pressed up into the chest until the stomach turns upside down.

Discovery of her condition was made by Dr. Floyd E. Clarke when Alyce complained of severe stomach pains.

Loans Returned

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 15.—Governor Davey has acted to have five building and loan companies returned to their shareholders. They include the Mutual Home & Savings Association and the Permanent Building & Savings association, of Dayton. The governor said he is requesting Paul Wagner, superintendent of building and loans,
to apply to the Montgomery county courts for permission to return
the associations immediately.

LEETONIA AUTO
SHOP WRECKED
BY BLAST, FIRE

Cecil Crothers, Operator,
Narrowly Escapes
With Life

EXPLOSION CAUSE
REMAINS MYSTERY

Repair Room and Second Floor Are Destroyed
By Flames

Cecil Crothers, operator of a filling station in Leetonia, narrowly escaped with his life as a mysterious explosion, followed by fire, wrecked his building at Front and Walnut sts., at 10 p. m. Thursday.

A storeroom and repair room were parts of the building adjoining the filling station quarters.

Crothers was unable today to determine exactly what might have caused the blast, although he expressed the opinion that it occurred someplace between the store room and repair room.

Hurled Into Street

The force of the explosion virtually picked Crothers from his feet and hurled him through the door onto Front st.

Although suffering from severe burns to his face and hands, as well as bruises and cuts, he struggled to his feet, ran into the building and pushed out his car which had been in the repair room.

The sections of the building used as the repair shop, and the second story were destroyed by the combined explosion and flames. The fire was extinguished by the Leetonia fire department.

The building was owned by Peter Stancato of Toronto.

The damage is estimated at approximately $2,000.

REVOLT "PLOTS"

Congress Committee Recommends Legislation
On Propaganda

(By Associated Press)

PAWNEE, Okla., Feb. 15.—A Tulsa society girl who spurned the love of Phil Kenamer joined other defense witnesses at his murder trial today in an effort to save the 19-year-old youth from the death penalty.

The girl, pretty Miss Virginia
Wilcox, has been summoned to tell of the juvenile adulation lavished upon her by the son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kenamer. The lengths to which he assertedly went to prove his affection have been spun into nearly every bit of evidence in his trial for the murder of John Gorrell, son of a prominent Tulsa physician.

"I'm going to tell whatever I can to clear up this terrible tragedy,"
said the 19-year-old daughter of H.
P. Wilcox, millionaire oil man.

Gorrell, a friend of the defendant, was found shot to death in an exclusive residential section of oil-wealthy Tulsa on Thanksgiving night. Two days later Kenamer surrendered, saying he had shot in self defense while attempting to thwart an alleged extortion plot against the Wilcox family.

The state alleges he shot Gorrell
when the latter refused to help carry out the purported plot.

Miss Wilcox is one of a score of prominents in the Tulsa younger social set here for the trial, which was brought to Pawnee on a change of venue.

Saying he didn't "know much about this crazy love Phil had for Virginia," Wilcox said his daughter would "tell all she knows."

Attorneys for the dapper, husky defendant are committed to a double-barreled plea of self defense and temporary insanity.

District Attorney Says
Hauptmann Was Alone
In Crime

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—Bronx
County District Attorney Samuel
J. Foley asserted today that Bruno Richard Hauptmann, according to all the evidence, committed the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder alone.

"There has never been any evidence," he said, "definite or otherwise, to indicate that anybody was implicated other than Hauptmann."

"The case is closed as far as this office is concerned."

Foley denied truth to reports that an accomplice is known and that authorities are awaiting a favorable opportunity to trap him.

Chief of Counsel Edward J.
Reilly said that he had never heard that the authorities knew of "an accomplice."

Eventually, the police may find some truth to my theory that the crime was committed by at least four persons, none of them Hauptmann," Reilly observed. "But I can't recall of the police ever acting on the accomplice angle."

Reilly said that he "will no longer try to solve this crime for the police."

"I'll let them solve their own crimes, henceforth," he remarked.
"And I hope they have better luck
than they've had with the Lindbergh kidnaping."

Reilly said the matter of appeal
will be worked out by Frederick A.
Pope and Egbert Rosecrans, two of his New Jersey associates in the defense of Hauptmann.

'Sleeping Beauty'
In Bed Four Years;
Mother Still Hopes

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Feb. 15.—Sleeping
Patricia McGuire today entered her fourth year in the half-world of semi-consciousness.

The Oak Park girl, who drifted
off into slumber on Feb. 15, 1932,
marked the anniversary by continuing to sleep in her mother's suburban home, apparently unmindful of the date that was slipping past.

The years, though they have brought momentous changes to the rest of the world, have brought little improvement to the girl, imprisoned in a coma that has baffled physicians.

She is able to read simple, printed commands placed before her eyes, she can eat semi-solid foods, replacing the liquids of previous nasal feedings, and she receives massages to prevent atrophy of unused muscles.

Little else makes up the daily life of the girl as the years slip by and she nears her 30th birthday.

But her mother, Mrs. Peter Mc-Guire, remains hopeful that she will recover.

Mrs. Hauptmann Off to Trenton, Too

Mrs. Anna Hauptmann

By Mary Elizabeth Plummer,
Associated Press Staff Writer

PLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Anna Hauptmann yesterday was denied a visit to her husband, who has been sentenced to die in the electric chair for murdering the Lindbergh baby.

"No more visiting," said Sheriff John H. Curtis. "She'll have to make her arrangements with the state prison at Trenton from now on."

Sheriff Curtis said Hauptmann "is under regular state prison rules now, and is going to abide by them."

"I'm not going to allow anybody in except possibly his attorney, if Hauptmann wants to see him," the sheriff added.

Mrs. Hauptmann's request for a visit was laid before the sheriff by one of her guards,
while she stayed behind locked doors and drawn blinds in her furnished room near the court house.

Her last glimpse of her husband was when his guards took him from the courtroom after Justice Thomas W. Trenchard
pronounced the death sentence.

Sheriff Curtis plans to take the prisoner to Trenton Saturday. Mrs. Hauptmann said she would move to another furnished room in Trenton, with her 14-months-old son, Manfred, to be near her husband.

Ohio Problem Boy
Takes French Leave

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 15.—Officers of the boys' industrial school at Lancaster today were seeking John Franklin Wood, 19, "problem boy" of the state welfare department.

Woods, who was sentenced at the age of 13 to a life term in Ohio penitentiary, walked away Monday from the school, where he was an honor inmate.

However, "we expect him back
soon," said Miss Barbara Danford, executive secretary of the welfare department.

Woods was convicted of fatally shooting Edward Meeker, 60, a farmer, in a robbery near Martins Ferry. Because of his age, Warden Preston E. Thomas refused to admit him to Ohio penitentiary. The boy for a while was refused admittance to the boys' school. Woods will go free when he reaches 21,
Miss Danford said.

CASE CLOSED

The fate of Bruno Richard Hauptmann at the hands of a New Jersey jury has been taken out of conjecture. The defendant has been found guilty of the murder of the Lindbergh baby and sentenced to die in the electric chair. The case is closed, unless the court of appeals and errors decides to reopen it.

The verdict of guilt without recommendation of mercy is the one millions wanted to hear. Many others, not quite so sure of the conclusiveness of the state's case and perhaps more reluctant than their neighbors to demand a life for a life, would have been satisfied better with a recommendation of mercy. While doubt of his guilt on a charge of murder continues in their minds they would prefer that Hauptmann should remain alive.

This trial was to have been a demonstration of justice. It was to have been a course of instruction in the conduct of a murder trial. It was to have been a warning to criminals. What can be said of these things now that the jury has given its verdict and the trial is over?

Undoubtedly, the country knows more about the operation of a court and lawyers who practice before courts than it did when the trial started. If it does not have a higher opinion of justice as a result, the trial may have planted certain seeds of reform. Surely, any one who followed the trial closely must have felt disgust and alarm over frequent and plain evidence that both prosecution and defense were making the end justify the means. One wanted Bruno Hauptmann's life. The other was trying to save it. Perhaps justice is impervious to those who stand at her feet, perhaps not.

The Hauptmann trial will be one of the most widely remembered incidents of this generation. For weeks it has held a monopoly in news and conversation, to the extent that another generation will be unable to comprehend the amount of attention it was given. Its conclusion breaks a tension. The result promises to be pleasant. The United States can go back now to more pleasant thoughts than the evidence and conjectures of a murder trial.

STILL CONFIDENT

The confidence of a small group of men who refuse to be discouraged by a succession of accidents to airships is appealing. They are a reminder of men in other times who believed automobiles, steam trains, steamboats and many other impractical devices could be made practical by continuing to experiment with them.

Admittedly, the airship is both an expensive and hazardous object for experimentation. The possibilities claimed for it tax the imagination of most persons. It seems to have certain inherent weaknesses, visible to merely ordinary observers, which appear insurmountable. Only one ship, the Graf Zeppelin has established a record for safety. It and the Los Angeles, now decommissioned, are the only ships without major blemishes on their records. They are, in addition, the only two ships in existence, pending completion of another German craft. All others have met with accidents.

The record is overwhelmingly against the airship. Experiments with it in Great Britain, France, Italy, the United States and, to some extent in Germany, have been unfavorable. Yet, a little band of stubborn men who have studied and built airships refuse to admit defeat. They believe there is an explanation for every failure which will prove that failure could have been averted. Their courage is admirable. They deserve better luck than they have had.

The navy probably will not experiment further with airships in the immediate future. It would be a great pity if the navy's withdrawal were to put a stop to experimentation in the lighter-than-air division of aviation. There surely must be a source of finance to replace the flattened public purse reluctantly being closed by a public opinion which has been discouraged from sponsoring any more of Count Zeppelin's creations.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, Feb. 15—Thoughts while strolling: So a poet cannot become a business success! Well, laugh off John Farrar. More phony royalty around than ever. Phyllis Haver's rose-bud mouth. Only Italians pronounce Capone correctly. That is with a final "nay." Add husky Adonises: Spruille Braden.

None of the society girls has more giddyap than Beth Leary. Who can name all the Benets? You'd think a sudden gust would blow Claire Luce away like a puff ball. The newest blonde rave—Helen Jenson. Gus Edward's brother in snow white spats. And a red lapel rose.

Look alike: William Rhinelanders Stewart and Jay C. O'Brien. Voice alike: Jack Benny and Goodman Ace. No one would ever think Bob Reud, the dude, used to drive cows home at milking time in Hickory, N. C. For some philosophy give me Ed Howe. Best remembered in the Hauptmann trial drama Judge Trenchard.

Might suppose Billy Gaxton and Victor Moore would be sick of seeing each other but there they go to Dinty Moore's for dinner. Those Broadway build-ups for movies several years old. The only street where George M. Cohan is ever seen anymore is upper Fifth avenue.

Wish Robert Cortes Holliday would write some more of his walking stick papers. Two of the shillest telephone talkers: Roy Howard and Will Hays. Gilbert Gabriel is a ringer for that crack middle-west reporter, Alfred Segal. Cockeyed world! Those who were thrifty were suckers.

The DeWitt Wallaces used to work night and day to get out their little magazine, The Readers Digest, even mailing it themselves. The periodical was first launched in St. Paul, and after a few gasps expired. Later they revived it in Pleasantville, N. J. Now they are able to knock off work at intervals for a leisurely jaunt around the world. Gluttons for work, they are nothing for social life. So many like that seem to succeed.

In many ways the dapper Jules Glaenzer suggests the social top. The sprucest of dressers, he is valeted and barbered to a gloss few diletants achieve. His life seems a succession of teas, dinners, opening nights and supper clubs. Yet gymnasts pronounce him an almost perfect example of physical fitness. He has strength of those twice his size and muscles of steel. He attributes it to a ten-minute system of exercising he has unfailingly indulged for more than 20 years.

Bob Ripley is another who has not permitted a furiously busy life to interfere with keeping fine and dandy. Hand-ball is his favorite diversion in New York and every morning he gyrates into a lather. During voyages to distant outposts he has a series of setting-up exercises coupled with miles of earnest deck-walking. Among professional ladies, Elsie Janis is one of the most indefatigable devotees of exercise.

Writers are notoriously sedentary. The only out-door diversion that seems to catch their fancy is fishing. Irvin Cobb, Rex Beach, Ryley Cooper, Corey Ford, Ernest Hemingway, Louis Bromfield, Bob Davis, Jim Tully, Dashiell Hammett, Floyd Dell, Christopher Morley, James Branch Cabell and Charles MacArthur are expert anglers always looking for some excuse to try out their skill. The least athletic of the guild, however, is Theodore Dreiser. He plays no games and walks very little. Give him an easy rocker, a handkerchief to fold and he is content.

Peggy Joyce has joined the parade of perennials. That is the perennially young. At her present pace she is likely to make Fanny Ward look a selling plaster. Not that she has attained such a ripe age, but Peggy has been in the headlines for 15 years and for several years before that was in the front line of Broadway choruses. The years have touched her lightly. Although every night she is out going places and doing things. Her cheeks have the bloom and her eyes the sparkle of maidenhood. Her hands, too, express the symmetry and verve of youth. And hands are the give away to those who may try to hide their years.

THE STARS SAY

For Saturday, February 16

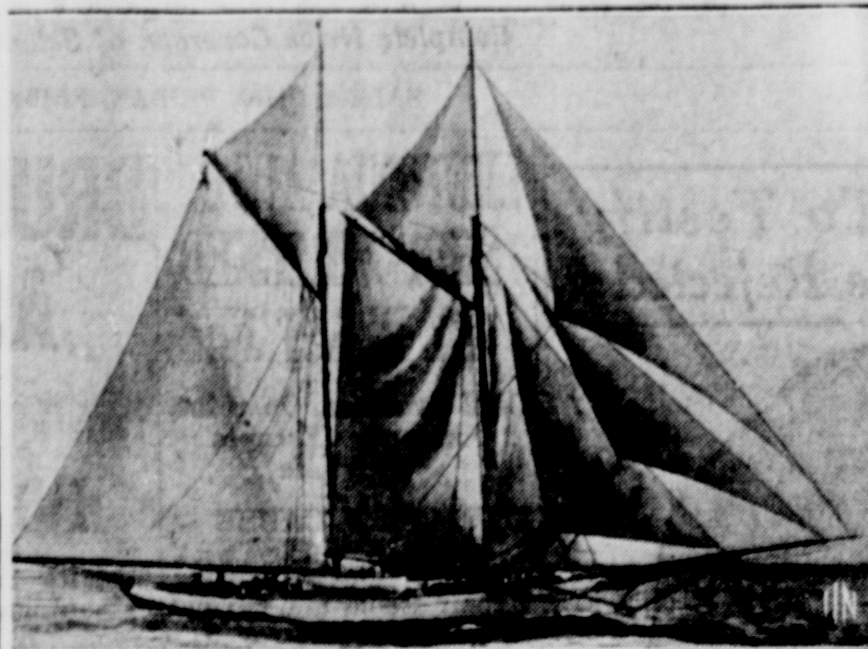

A very interesting day, with some fine prospects for definitely stabilizing the fortunes and making solid progress, is the augury based on an auspicious chain of mutual aspects between activating planets. The mind will be sharp, keen and ready to jump at the unusual or strange opportunity, this fortified by studious, stable and sound judgment.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of good opportunity for stabilizing their fortunes and possessions, as well as becoming anchored in solid paths of success and security.

A child born on this day should be steady, persevering, studious and dependable, with quick and clever insight into all prospects for its steady progress and success.

Indigestion Common Foe

It is amazing how many persons suffer from indigestion. This complaint is universal, being met in every walk of life. It is the common foe of good looks, happiness, health and long life. It creates a vile disposition and an unpleasant outlook on life.

Dr. Copeland

Indigestion appears to be more prevalent in this country than abroad. It is more common in the larger cities than in small communities. This is easily explained. Country folks eat more "sanely". It is the city dweller who is more prone to select the wrong type of food, to eat hurriedly and at irregular hours.

This practice often leads to gas pains, "heartburn" and ultimately, perhaps, to serious chronic disorders of the digestive system. The rapidity with which the average American eats his meal is astounding. Perhaps you have fallen into this unwise habit and unknowingly are paving the way to faulty digestion. If so, it is advisable to revise your eating schedule. If you are a regular sufferer from indigestion now is the time to determine the cause and get rid of the disturbance.

Temporary Relief

Contrary to popular belief, indigestion is not a thing to be disregarded. It is a sign of some disorder that should not be neglected. While it may be due to faulty eating habits or improper diet, there may be some inflammation or more serious disorder of the stomach or intestines.

As I have suggested, there are many causes for indigestion. Some appear trivial and unimportant. While many are easily remedied, others are difficult to correct. In any case the cause of the trouble should be found and removed.

Let me warn against the indiscreet practice of depending on "indigestion tablets". Relief may be obtained from their use, but it is only temporary.

The irritable person, sometimes called a "crank" or "grouch", is the victim of indigestion. Gas pains and other discomforts make him irritable and difficult to please, or listless and generally miserable. This is unfortunate because in most instances the underlying cause could be found and proper measures taken to remove it. When indigestion, "dyspepsia", "biliousness" and other digestive disturbances are recognized early, cure is possible.

Correct Underlying Cause
Sometimes the underlying cause may be some serious disturbance, such as stomach ulcer or something more serious. These disorders are curable if recognized in their early stages.

The point of my story today is, find out exactly what is wrong with you. Forget your pain and other symptoms long enough to get at the bottom of things and then you will find a way to remove your misery.

Answers to Health Queries

Zora Q.—Will you please tell me the cause of coated tongue?

A.—This is usually due to constipation. Diet is important. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

D. S. Q.—What can be done to overcome sluggish elimination?

A.—Proper attention to the diet, regular habits and daily outdoor exercise should be of general benefit and advantage in this case. For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

SHE FELT MARVELOUS WHEN HABITS BECAME REGULAR

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Relieved Her Constipation*

Read this splendid letter: "I tried everything, with little or no results. I felt miserable, was 20 but looked much older, and my skin was continually breaking out.

"I decided to try ALL-BRAN, three meals a day for about a week. Elimination became regular; I felt marvelous and looked better. Even my outlook on life was changed."

Mrs. Armand Hamel, Pawling, N.Y.

*Constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.

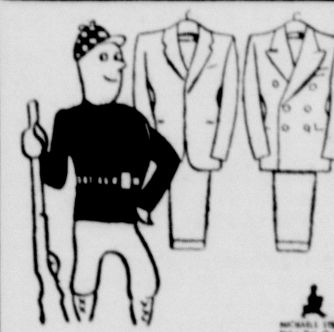

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. It also furnishes vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle—and safe for normal individuals. More effective than "bulk" in leafy vegetables, as it does not break down within the body.

Isn't this natural food pleasanter than patent medicines? Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily. Chronic cases, with each meal. If not relieved, see your doctor.

Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Much more effective than part-bran products. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

BRIDGE PLAYERS GATHER TONIGHT

Kibitzer Out With Set of Rules; How Many Do You Observe?

Salem bridge players, both novice and star, will gather at the Memorial building tonight for the bi-weekly session with the pasteboards.

Kibitzer, in anticipation of this and succeeding sessions, today submits a list of rules for contract duplicate bridge, and maybe he'll check tonight to see how many are observing them.

If you're playing contract duplicate, says Kibitzer, you're supposed to perform as follows:

1. Take five minutes for each hand.

2. Quietness must be observed as much as possible.

3. Players are not permitted to look at traveling score sheet, even though Dummy, until hand is finished.

4. If you discover a mistake do not change it, report it once to scorer or manager of this game.

5. Each North player should score and the East or West player should check the score to avoid mistakes.

6. North and South score only is recorded whether plus or minus. Game not vulnerable scores 300 plus game score and honors (if any). Game vulnerable scores 500 plus game score and honors (if any). Part game score add 50 to game score plus honors (if any).

7. Players are required by bridge laws to announce the system they play and any private conventions they use at each table.

ence, to "consolidate persons of German birth and descent" in this country "into one group, subject to dictation from abroad."

At "youth summer camps" in different localities, the report asserted, children were taught to recognize Chancellor Hitler of Germany as their leader.

But the report added that the committee's disclosure in open hearings have started a "disintegration of the movement."

Of Fascism in this country, it said:

"There have been isolated cases of activity by organizations which seemed to be guarded by the Fascist principle, which the committee investigated and found had made no progress."

However, it reported there was evidence which would "justify an investigation" of alleged "Fascist activity by an Italian vice consul at Detroit."

Recalls Pledge

The committee recalled the pledge, given by Soviet Russia at the time of American recognition. In December, 1933—a month after that pledge—the Communist internationale in a meeting at Moscow approved a platform calling for the "overthrow" of the "exploiting classes," the committee said.

That resolution plainly advocated "the bringing about by force of a change in the social or political order of the whole or any part of the United States, its territories or possessions," the committee contended, adding that it was approved by the Communist party of the United States in a convention at Cleveland in April, 1934.

Although the committee held that Communistic activity in this country is not such as to constitute an immediate danger, it warned that there must be protective action.

There were findings that Kurt Georg Wilhelm Lueddecke, who gained access to White House press conferences and the congressional press galleries, used "his position of traveling representative for a German commercial house as a smoke screen behind which to disseminate his propaganda," that Carl Byoir and associates of New York City circulated "propaganda" in this country for the German tourist agency, that the firm of Lee-T. J. Ross "sold their services for express propaganda purposes" to I. G. Farben industries; that George Sylvester Viereck helped the Byoir firm get its contract.

It added that Dr. Otto H. F. Vollebier, who sold some rare books to the United States recently for $1,500,000, spent his own money for the circulation of "Memoranda" and was warned by Dr. Hans Luther, German ambassador, not to "mix in American politics."

A Doctor Knows!

And doctors use a liquid laxative

There's a very good reason why doctors and hospitals have always used liquid laxatives! You'd use a liquid, too, if you knew how much better it makes you feel.

A liquid laxative can always be taken in the right amount. You can gradually reduce the dose. Reduced dosage is the secret of real and safe relief from constipation.

Just ask your own doctor about this. Ask your druggist how popular liquid laxatives have become. The right liquid laxative gives the right kind of help, and the right amount of help. When the dose is repeated, instead of more each time, you take less. Until the bowels are moving regularly and thoroughly without any help at all.

People who have experienced this comfort, never return to any form of help that can't be regulated! The liquid laxative generally used is Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It contains senna and cascara, and these are natural laxatives that form no habit—even in children. Its action is gentle, but sure. It will relieve a condition of biliousness or sluggishness without upset. It's the ideal family laxative because it's a family doctor's prescription, and perfectly safe and effective for family use.

"Leave the rest to nature"

If you are seeking something that will relieve your occasional upsets safely and comfortably, try Syrup Pepsin. Give regulated doses until Nature restores regularity.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Upturns in grain values took place early today after a hesitant start. Fresh advances of hog prices were a stimulus to the corn market, and there were suggestions that considerable domestic winter wheat southwest must depend on one chance out of ten for frequent and heavy rainfalls in May. Opening 1/4 lower to 1/4 higher, May 85 1/2, corn soon rose all around. Wheat started unchanged to 1/4 off, May 96 1/2, and subsequently made a general advance.

"I'M INNOCENT", PRISONER SAYS

New York Article Hints Two Men Took Part In Abduction

everything I knew on the witness stand." "The state," he complained bitterly "tried to show only the bad things about me. x x x the state wants to take my life for nothing." "The most ridiculous thing in the whole trial," he declared, "was the board in the attic. Why should I go up in the attic for a board when I had a whole pile of lumber in my garage?"

State witnesses testified that an upright in the kidnapers home-made ladder once had been part of the flooring in Hauptmann's attic. Hauptmann was asked whether he thought the presence of Colonel Lindbergh had any influence on the jury.

"Naturally," he replied. "No Others Mentioned" The New York News in its article said the second man's part in the crime "was not mentioned at the Hauptmann trial because of the anxiety of the prosecution that nothing should be allowed to becloud the issue of Hauptmann's guilt."

"But," it continued, "the fact that Hauptmann had an accomplice has long been known to the department of justice, the New York police and District Attorney Foley of the Bronx. x x x 'The handkerchief was recovered from the street x x x and chemical analysis of the linen revealed that the man who had carried it was a sufferer from sinus infection. x x x Hauptmann denied that either he or anyone he knew was so afflicted.'"

The end of the New York police department's investigation sent back to routine duty Acting Lieutenant James J. Finn and 50 men who worked under him to solve the Lindbergh case. Rinn estimated that as many as 300 had worked on the case at one time or another and that it had cost New York City $300,000.

Mrs. Hauptmann, who went to Flemington to be near her husband, returned to New York with their infant son last night. She plans to obtain a furnished room in Trenton, so that she can visit him while he is in the death house.

A Review of the Day's News
By Arthur Brisbane

WHO ARE the saddest men on earth this morning? They are the "press agents," gentlemen that work for politicians, theatrical stars, society persons and others that would like to be talked about on the front page.

The proverbial "snowflake in the nether region" would have as good a chance as a press agent trying for the front page with the "Macon wreck," "the richest girl married," and "THE HAUPTMANN VERDICT."

The imaginary gent might as well have tried to sell toy balloons in Pompeii while the eruption was on.

IT WAS all the titanethere could do to secure half a "stick" of front page space. And he, just found, was a prehistoric rhinoceros as big as an elephant dead thirty million years ago. Ordinarily, he would be good for a full column.

TWO KINDS of men, two kinds of nations; one kind quits in the face of misfortune, the other does NOT quit.

This nation has lost another dirigible, for reasons that will be developed more or less clearly. Will it now quit or build more dirigibles?

If it DOES as it SHOULD, build more, it might let civilians try to run them for awhile. Germans have been running the same old dirigible back and forth across the ocean on business errands regularly, for years, no disaster.

THE FRENCH say, literally translated, "A misfortune is quickly arrived."

The suggestion of a serious explosion, on the Macon, reminds you that the war misfortune could quickly arrive.

Suppose it were suggested, then, proved that the great dirigible had been wrecked by representatives of some hostile navy, objecting to our big dirigible over the Pacific? What then? That would take our minds off the Hauptmann case, and the Doris Duke wedding.

It is utterly unthinkable, but you remember what happened after the Maine sank. "Everything is possible."

Takes Rap At Davey
CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 15.—Marvin C. Harrison, president of the Consumers League, in a letter to Governor Davey, described the dismissal of Miss Grace E. Meyette, deputy inspector of the Ohio minimum wage division, as "an outrageous evasion of the civil service law."

CAGE RULES OF FUTURE AIMED AT BIG CENTER

Coaches Agree Something Simply Has to Be Done About It

BY FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 15.—Elimination of the basketball tip-off, or center-jump, by the national rules committee effective for the 1935-36 season, was predicted here today by Harold G. Olsen, coach of Ohio State's up-and-coming cage quintet.

"It is the only way to combat the 'big-man' menace," Olsen said, "and I believe the rules committee will legislate the tip-off from the game. Such a ruling would guarantee each team possession of the ball at least half the time, which is impossible these days when a big center and a smaller one jump for the ball."

The decision of the rules committee will hinge on the outcome of experimental play being conducted this season along the Pacific coast, Olsen believes. As played along the coast the team scored against is given the ball on an out-of-bounds play under the basket it is defending.

Coach Olsen and Ray Detrick, mentor of the Ohio Wesleyan team which is unbeaten in the Buckeye conference, agree that something must be done to cut the effectiveness of the tall and rangy centers, both say the advent of the tall tip-off men has changed the game too much, and that some way must be found to give the ball to the "little fellows" part of the time.

"What we need is a 'compensating' rule, such as football has," Olsen said. "When a football team is scored on it has the choice of kicking or receiving. Basketball needs a rule which would give the ball to the team scored upon."

Detrick also favors the tip-off elimination rule, but instead of giving the ball to the team scored upon, would alternate the "throw-in" privilege between the teams, regardless of who scored. That rule is now in effect in girls' basketball, but Detrick denies that it would make a "sissy" pastime of the boys' game.

In commenting upon the high scorers of the year, more than a score of whom are averaging between 10 and 20 points per game, the two coaches said a combination of circumstances have brought about the sharpshooters.

"They are all big, powerful men, and difficult to guard," Detrick said. "Take Berens of Ohio university, Austing of Cincinnati, Powell of Baldwin-Wallace and Pontius of Western Reserve. All of them are giants, and no guard has much chance against them."

"All of them are fine shots, and it is natural that the coach build his team around them, even in these days when team play and more balanced scoring powers are the vogue."

Ten years ago there were fine scorers in the state, just as there are now, but most of their power was in individual ability and not dependent upon size. Among the greats of other years were Minor of Ohio State, McBride of Mt. Union, Wright and Bobby Shea of Ohio Wesleyan, and Bolton and Eithan Allen of Cincinnati. They got their points without the advantage of the huge centers who have come to dominate the game."

Detrick refrained from mentioning that he, during his playing days at Wittenberg college, was considered the finest scoring machine in the state, or that he, of only average height, once scored 39 points in a college basketball game.

Roumanians Play

The Salem Roumanians will play Youngstown in a league game tonight at 7:30 at the Memorial building.

Bargains are plentiful. The ads. will tell you where.

Those two relentless tormentors of time, Sir Malcolm Campbell and Gar Wood, are not after the old gent with the hourglass once again.

Sir Malcolm, the daredevil Britisher who holds the world's land speed record, has been zooming over the white sands of Daytona Beach in his new streamlined Blue Bird, chasing the shadowy figure of 300 miles per hour.

Wood, the leathery-faced silver fox of speedboat racing, owns the aquatic speed mark and is preparing for another assault on his own record early next month.

Campbell's monster Blue Bird is the fastest machine that has ever moved across dry land, and the smiling Sir Malcolm has remodelled it in streamline fashion, so that you would never recognize it as the same car that set the present mark of 272.108 m. p. m. in 1933.

The British speed king flirts with death whenever he flashes across the ten and one-half mile stretch of said Daytona Beach in quest of a new record, but as he himself says, "When you start thinking of your own safety, you stop driving racing cars."

Campbell is 50 years old and wealthy. He has invested $50,000 in this year's record attempt, and says that it would cost $200,000 to fit out the new streamlined chassis with a perfect motor.

The present Blue Bird motor has the same 2,500-horsepower airplane engine that drove her two years ago to the current record.

Sir Malcolm also has expressed a wish to find the perfect track, which, according to him, would be at least 15 miles long, or about 5 miles longer than the Florida beach course.

The Gator State will also be the scene of Gar Wood's speed trials when he aims at his own mark of 124.85 m. p. h. made in the present Miss America X two summers ago.

The gray-haired fox of the water will make his try at Miami Beach, and whenever Wood's famous craft churns through the waves, the speed record totters on its pedestal.

Old Pop Time will have to do his darndest if he expects to protect the old mark on land and water from the twin assaults of Campbell and Wood.

Salem And Alliance Will Battle Tonight In Big Six Contest

Victorious in 12 of 14 games to date this season and unbeaten on their home boards, the Salem High school "Quakers" are confident they can turn back the Alliance "Aviators" tonight on the local court and then drive on to capture the coveted Northeastern Ohio Big Six league championship.

The Alliance-Salem combat will not decide the title race but the winner will immediately be installed as favorite in the scramble. In addition to nursing fond title hopes, Salem's "Quakers" crave a victory over the "Aviators" to atone for the 21 to 20 loss suffered at Memorial hall.

Salem feels it is within three comparatively easy strides of the Northeastern Ohio Big Six title. These remaining obstacles are Alliance, Struthers and Niles, all scheduled for the home court.

Of the three opponents, Salem regards the much improved "Aviators" as the most formidable. Salem has already won the Columbiana County Class A scholastic title and believes the Big Six championship would look quite appropriate alongside the county gonfalon.

The Alliance-Salem game promises to draw a capacity throng. Reserve seats have been on sale for over a week and these pastebards have been going fast.

The Alliance and Salem reserves will clash in the preliminary game shortly after 7 p. m. If all-important varsity tussle will get under way immediately after the close of the reserve fracas.

Charles McCloskey is Salem's leading scorer to date. From his guard position he has registered 81 points in 13 games. He ranks sixth in the list of Big Six scorers.

Coach Brown has not announced his starting lineup but in previous games he has relied upon Mullins and Cope at forwards; Palmer, center, and Beck and McCloskey at the guards. There is a possibility that Brown may elect to start Earl Zelle flashy forward, who has been playing a class brand of basketball, at one of the scoring wings.

Coach Brown has worked his charges overtime this week, polishing both the offensive and defensive maneuvers. Not a little time has been devoted to tossing free throws from the 15 foot line as Coach Brown believes the game will be closely contested and that one or more successful charity pitches may spell the difference between victory and defeat.

Starks and Seufis, Alliance center and guard, who scored 15 points between them against Salem in the previous fray, will be guarded closely. Cunin scored four points against the "Quakers" in that fray.

"THE LADY DANCES" by MARGE STANLEY

CHAPTER XXIII

"Didn't you see anything? Nothing to identify the man?"

"When he ran through the door, I saw bare feet. He was fully clothed with bare feet—that's all I know."

"And you suspected me?" He indicated the knee-boots he wore. "I suppose you think I ran back to my room and laced these up between the time you screamed and I responded."

"I was excited," she said. "I don't suspect you now. I know now who it was."

"Who was it? And are you quite positive it wasn't, as Shene suggested, a dream?"

"Of course I'm positive! And as to my suspicion—to whom do the facts of being fully-clothed, yet barefoot, point?"

"You mean—Loring?" Mark asked.

"Who else?"

"I don't believe it was Loring. He's not a thief. He has a multitude of faults, and perhaps very few virtues, but I'll swear honesty's one of them."

"You'd naturally defend him," the girl declared.

"Besides," continued Mark, "what could he want? The little money he might expect to find? The moment he tried to spend a shilling we'd all know where it came from."

"It wasn't money," she said.

"What else could he want?"

"He slipped a cord over her head, and drew out of her gown the tan chambray bag that had fallen to the deck of the Porpoise."

"It was this," she replied, handing it to Mark. "You must have noticed it when I dropped it this afternoon."

Mark loosened the slip cord, and tilted the bag's contents into his hand—about a dozen small but perfect pennies. They might have brought forty or fifty pounds—say two hundred dollars—at Suva.

"What are these?" he asked.

"The remains of your family jewels?"

"You're cruel!" said Vanya, flushing. "They were given to me by a friend, by old Bill Torkas. He liked me; he was the only friend I've had since—since I've been in the islands. He gave them to me one or two at a time, each time he visited the Cove. There were more of them."

"More, eh?"

"Yes. I sold some in Taulanga to pay my passage to the States. And that," she declared defiantly, "is the answer to the question you flung at me on the point two or three nights ago. That's how I got

"Mark," Vanya murmured, "I hate you because a single kiss of yours erases the memory of all your cruelty."

my passage money."

It was Mark's turn to flush.

"I'm sorry," he said. "Loring mentioned old Bill Torkas."

"That's why I came back to the Cove after being turned away from the States. I had at least one friend here, I thought. But he had died—and even that refuge was gone."

Mark poured the glowing little gems back into her bag.

"To return to the question," he said. "How would Loring know of these?"

"You saw the bag drop; I thought you might have mentioned it."

"But I didn't," protested Mark grimly. "I hardly noticed it, in fact. And there were others on deck, too—the black boys, for instance!"

"The feet were a white man's feet," objected Vanya. "I'm sure of that."

"Shene might have seen, or even Orris."

"Orris was at the wheel," said the girl. "But he might have seen. Or Shene, too. But I think it was Loring."

"And I don't!" exploded Mark. "I've a mind to ask him."

"Don't dare!" cried the girl. "Can't you see? Now that even one person at the Cove knows of these, I can't keep them. That's why I'm telling you of them—I want you to keep them for me."

"To keep them?" echoed Mark.

"Why, of course, if you're sure you want to trust me with them."

"They're nothing to you. You spend more on whims than they'd bring. To me, they're everything—my means of living in the States until I can find other means."

Mark drew his wallet from his pocket, and carefully placed the diminutive bag in a clasped compartment.

"I promise that no one will get these," he assured the girl as he rose to leave.

He drew her into his arms, kissing her on her lips, her closed eyes.

"Mark," she murmured, "I hate you because a single kiss of yours erases the memory of all your cruelty."

"Do you know what I think?" he whispered as he opened the door. "I think you love me!"

Iron and Fire

"I can't walk in this," objected Vanya, staring down at her brief white wash dress and bare legs, and then at the pile of laundry beside her. "I shouldn't anyway with this washing to do."

"Oh, come on," urged Mark. "For once it's cool enough for a stroll. And what's wrong with that outfit?"

"Snakes!" shuddered the girl. "Ankle socks are de trop' in the Friendly Islands, and not modest, besides, for climbing coral hillocks and windfalls."

"Then change," he suggested. "I've not been a hundred yards from the Cove, save that once to the native village."

She acquiesced and disappeared with her armful of clothes. Mark strolled over to Loring's tree, whence that individual regarded him pleasantly from his comfortable sprawl.

"What does today?" he called as Mark approached. "You've been slighting me of late."

"Unintentional," smiled Mark. "I'm taking Vanya for a stroll on the beach."

"Then I'll not go," remarked Loring. "But you're sure to get into trouble of some nature."

"I can do that here," conceded Mark.

"True words! By the way, do you owe me a quart?"

"I do not, but I'll stand for one, since I'm denying you my pleasant company today."

No," said Loring, reproachfully. "I'll find a way to earn it, you'll be in some dilemma before long."

"That's a good gamble. Apropos of nothing, what do you do during the rainy months?"

"Just what I do now. Think and try not to drink, and try to do more of it. Eat, and wonder that I waste the time at it. Sleep, and wish that I could do nothing but it."

"I mean, how do you keep dry?"

"Oh," said Loring. "Generally I don't. When the rains are too troublesome, I throw together a palm leaf lean-to. Dry as you'd wish, and it soon disappears completely, and then you can forget the rains and pretend the sun always shines. A real house is a perpetual reminder of ill weather; mine's better."

"That bit of philosophy's worth a drink," laughed Mark. "Put it on your tally."

"I don't forget things of importance," grinned the beachcomber. "Has last night's scream anything to do with your high good humor this morning?"

"So you heard it?" muttered Mark. "Where were you?"

"Within two inches of where I am now. Don't tell me you suspect me as the cause!"

"Frankly, I don't," said Mark. "I can't picture you as being involved in this particular matter. Which is saying that I think rather more highly of you than certain others do."

"And thanks for your good opinion," observed Loring. "Here comes one who doesn't share it!"

Mark turned to see Vanya approaching; she had changed her garb to the breeches and boots she had worn in the native village. He nodded to Loring, and strolled over to meet her; she passed the beachcomber without a single glance.

"Which way?" asked Mark.

"That way is almost out of the question," the girl replied, gesturing toward the end of the cove bounded by the reef. "The shore overhangs, and there's practically no beach at all. So it must be this way."

They moved along the wide, white beach. Mark noticed Vanya's tiny footprints beside his own ample ones in the firm sand as, just beyond the bend of the bay, they mounted a great fallen sandalwood tree, with a bole as thick as the span of Mark's extended arms.

"Did you mean that statement about the modesty of your dress?" he asked as they sprang again to the sand.

"Why, of course. Wasn't it obvious?"

"Yes, but how do you reconcile that attitude with your dancing? Don't you realize that your body was pretty thoroughly exposed in those costumes of yours? Your dress couldn't do any worse—or better?"

Vanya flushed.

WHY Didn't the Snow Melt on SMITH'S House?

Here's a startling clue. Jones uses 25% more fuel than Smith, yet his house is cold and draughty. (The heat has gone out through the roof.) And in summer, Smith's house is 6 to 12 degrees cooler than Jones'.

Novarro-Laye Musical Romance and Domestic Comedy Form State's Bill

TONIGHT the State offers a double bill made up of a musical romance, "The Night Is Young" and a domestic comedy entitled, "Maybe It's Love".

Lovely Background

The first film is a beautifully laid picture of glamorous Vienna with its Imperial Opera, its haunting music and continental gaiety and romance. Oscar Hammerstein II and Sigmond Romberg, the team that created "Desert Song" and "New Moon" wrote the music of the spectacular new production, revolving about the Vienna ballet and staged with striking effects and beautiful costumes.

Ramon Novarro in the romantic uniform he wears so well and teamed with a piquant new personality from England, "champagne-blond" Evelyn Laye, Novarro's splendid voice.

Edward Everett Horton, Charles Butterworth, Una Merkel, Herman Bing, Charles Judels, Henry Stephenson and Donald Cook—these are more of the essential highlights of "The Night Is Young".

Story Is Old

As far as the plot is concerned it is far from a new one. It is the old tale of the dashing young prince who falls in love with the lovely chorus girl. This time she is a member of the Vienna ballet and of course the love is forbidden by the Austrian emperor, the count, the duke and what not. The prince must marry the ugly princess but the rather good hearted emperor allows him one last fling at romance before the marriage. Of course, though he never meant to, for he had really intended making love to the Countess Rafay, the prince, nevertheless falls in love with the dancer. And so the troubles begin as they always do in this sort of story with the two young people greatly in love but realizing it can never last—for alas he is a prince and she is only a chorus girl.

Here is an exclusive radiophoto of Lieutenant Commander H. V. Wiley, of the ill-fated dirigible Macon, conferring with fellow officers upon arrival in San Francisco as to circumstances which caused the disaster.

HARTFORD, Conn.—Two teams lost hockey games here because they became confused over the location of the goals and scored for the opposing sextets. West Hartford High school defeated Holyoke 2-1 and the Hartford Indians beat Windsor 1-0 on unearned goals.

SARNIA, Ont.—Similar in size to a one-cent piece, a coin owned by Bruce Armstrong is believed by collectors to be over 1,800 years old. Markings on it indicate, they say, it was printed in Rome during the reign of Emperor Claudius, about 54 B. C.
